Delta Force

1st Special Forces Operational Detachment-Delta

Why 1st SFOD-D?

1st SFOD-D (Delta Force) remains the United States Army's most lethal weapon in the Global War on Terrorism. Delta's success has been predicated upon the high quality of soldiers, like you, that serve in our organization. Our personnel are carefully selected, trained, and equipped to offer our country the world's most agile and responsive force, capable of operating across the complete spectrum of conflict from individual clandestine activities through overt combat operations.

Given the national importance of this task, the recruitment, assessment and training of 1st SFOD-D continues to receive direct attention from the Chief of Staff of the Army.

Although the 1st SFOD-D assessment and selection process is both demanding and challenging, it is well within your grasp. Are you willing to join the fight with the world's finest combat force?

"The greatest failure is not trying!"

Operator

PREREQS | PROCESS | CONTACT US

Delta Force Operator

The NCOs are the backbone of DELTA. The NCO that completes the Operator Training Course is assigned to an assault team. His continued training will involve advanced demolition, freefall, driving, and other specialized skills. He will deploy, throughout the world, to conduct combat operations or to conduct high intensity, realistic training. He will work in any environment, from a 2-man team to a full squadron or as part of an interagency team.

Within a short amount of time, NCOs in DELTA assume greater leadership roles within the unit. They work with conventional and other special operations units who look to them for guidance and leadership during combat operations.

An Operator Officer attends the same specialty training and is then assigned to a leadership role within the squadron. Officers in DELTA interface with senior US and foreign military leaders, other government agencies, and senior US civilian leadership. They work in environments where they may have little guidance and will make critical, strategically important decisions.
